Lake Forest College

A LAKE FOREST VISTA

Environment

LAKE FOREST is situated twenty-eight miles north of Chicago on high ground overlooking Lake Michigan. The shore line, rising eighty feet above the lake level, is broken by deep ravines with a picturesque tangle of trees, ferns and wild flowers. The College campus is encompassed on three sides by these ravines.

Lake Forest is a town of attractive homes in the midst of fine oak woods. A walk through the winding streets gives successive vistas of shady lawns, of well-kept gardens, of bridges spanning ravines, and of the varying beauty of the lake.

This wealth of natural beauty, in the center of which the College is situated, is within easy reach of Chicago by the suburban service of the Chicago & Northwestern Railway and by the Chicago & Milwaukee Electric Railway. Many of the leaders in the commerce, industry, and art of the city have their homes in Lake Forest. The influences that go out from this place take hold upon the life of the world.

President Finley said, "Lake Forest is more of an earthly paradise than any other place I have ever seen." It is worth much to pass four years of the impressionable period of one's life in such an environment.

THE LAKE AND THE FOREST—FROM THE ROOF OF COLLEGE HALL

LOCATION—Near Chicago, the very heart of the country, and in touch with its civic, commercial, and aesthetic advantages; on the high bluffs of Lake Michigan, in a town which by the favor of Nature and the art of man, is known as the most beautiful suburban town in the Central West.

Educational

EDUCATIONAL. The efficiency of a college depends chiefly upon the character of its Faculty and the adequacy of its equipment. The Faculty of Lake Forest College are mature and experienced teachers, and "personal touch," both within and without the class room, is not a mere fiction.

The principal buildings in general use are the Reid Memorial Chapel and Library, centers of the religious and studious life of the institution; the new Carnegie Science Hall, which houses the department of Physics; in College Hall are located the laboratories of Chemistry and Biology, whilst in the Durand Institute and both North and College Halls are the offices of administration and the class rooms of the other departments of instruction.

Physical Training

LAKE FOREST COLLEGE was one of the first colleges in the West to make adequate provision for the physical training of its students. The equipment for this important side of college activity is complete. A well-appointed gymnasium, tennis and basket ball courts, an athletic field of seven acres, afford an opportunity for all kinds of physical culture and athletic games. Competent directors of Physical Training are in charge of athletic sports and gymnasium work.

Where Lake Forest College Students Live

Lake Forest is unique among western colleges in that all its students, both men and women, are housed and fed upon the campus. The men room in four dormitories, provided with modern conveniences, and take their meals in the rarely beautiful new Calvin Durand Commons.

The college women live in Lois Durand, a modern building with every comfort and convenience. This dormitory provides an ideal home for sixty-two young women.

In the Alice Home the college possesses a fully equipped infirmary and hospital, with experienced nurses always in attendance.
